

Arctic Bay and Nanisivik 2009

Arctic Bay, known to the Inuit as Ikpiajruk, "the pocket", is surrounded on three sides by high hills. Located on northern Baffin Island, it is a great place to experience the sights of narwhals, walruses, seals & other sea mammals. Arctic Bay is connected to the nearby mining community of Nanisivik by a 32 kilometre road. Nanisivik was developed in the 1970's to support Breakwater Resources' lead/zinc/silver mine, which is now in the last stages of closing. Each year on Canada Day, the area draws visitors from around the world for the Midnight Sun Marathon. During the run, the participants can view the spectacular panorama between Nanisivik and Arctic Bay. During the summer months, tourists also arrive on cruise ships to experience the sights and sounds of traditional Arctic Bay. Marble carvings, ivory sculptures, clothes and other arts and crafts are viewed and purchased from talented local artists and seamstresses.

Getting There: Flights to Nanisivik are operated by First Air. Routes are possible via Iqaluit-Resolute Bay on Saturdays and Wednesdays. Please check with the airline for schedule changes.
